The Last Call

Recruiting is going much more briskly of late in England and in this country, and it is well that it should be so. From now on greater impetus may be expected to the efforts being made to get all the men wanted, for when the question is squarely and personally placed before a lot of men they will be found responsive and in this respect the splendid poem recently composed by Harold Hebble and published in the London Chronicle ought to be considered by every man of military age:

Fight it out in your heart, my lad,
It's time for the final wreath;
Home has its arms around your neck
But conscience points to the trench
Your brothers fought through that self-same light.

Ere they rallied to face the Hun,
And where would your home be
Now, my lad
If conscience had not, won.

It isn't an easy choice to make,
But it can be made and must.
Shirk, and you bring the finest thing
In your soul, and ours, to the dust
Your brothers wrestled with God,
And died.

That God should leave them alone,
And where would your soul seek Heaven to-day
Had God been overthrown?

The eyes of our women search your face,
Our children look to you pass;
How does it feel to meet those eyes,
And your own eyes, in the glass?
Hard, hard for you now to meet
Those eyes.

With their challenge, How can you wait?
But where will you hide from your brother's eyes?
If you should come too late.

This is the last, the last free call
To you, your country, and the world;
To go as heroic Britons should—
Not wait till they're felled and sent.

Win your first fight, the fight with self,
Be swift with that gallant blow,
Then on to your second fight, good lad,
And crush God's other foe.

NEW 87TH BATTALION AUTHORIZED FOR THE RED DEER DISTRICT

Major L. F. Page, of the 5th Overseas Battalion, Who Is To Be Recalled, To Command

Russians' Great Victory in Caucasus

IN SPITE OF THE MOST SKILFUL HANDLING OF TURKISH FORCES, THEY WERE UNABLE TO WITHSTAND SUDDEN AND UNEXPECTED RUSSIAN DASH AGAINST CENTRE

Petrograd, Jan. 23.—The defeat of the third Turkish army in the Caucasus, resulting in its retirement upon Erzerum, is regarded here as a greater victory than that at Sari Kamash a year ago, when the same troops were so badly demoralized. The entire eleventh corps and parts of the ninth and tenth of the Turkish army were engaged in the battle in the neighborhood of Lake Turtum according to military authorities here. Behind these were concentrated the reserves from the ninth and the garrison of the Erzerum fortress. In spite of the most skilful handling of the Turkish division, however, they were unable to withstand the sudden and unexpected Russian dash against the centre.

The campaign began towards the end of summer. During autumn three Turkish divisions were thrown back at Olti and along the sea coast, while in the district of Lake Van, a division under Halil Bey, was defeated. The operations towards Erzerum ended with the defeat of the Persians, Turks and Germans, thus guaranteeing the safety of the Russian flank.

In December the Russians began an attack against the Turkish centre, and on January 3 broke the lines of the eleventh corps, so that these forces were obliged to retire in disorder. Evidently, according to the Russian military authorities, the Turks had not forgotten the lesson of Sari Kamash, when in trying to rescue the eleventh corps by flank attacks they suffered a virtual annihilation of the ninth and tenth corps, as they were then constituted. They did not risk a similar maneuver on this occasion, but permitted the flanks to be unmoored, rearing their forces against the central positions.

Not until three days after the retreat of the main Turkish army was an attempt made to threaten the Russian right along the sea. This offensive was quickly stopped. After a breach had been forced in the positions of the eleventh corps the retreat became a rout, the Turks falling back upon the Erzerum fortress, leaving dead and wounded, guns and equipment behind.

The defeat of the Turks, it is asserted, was particularly disastrous in the direction of Koyunli, where, by artillery attacks, followed by assaults with the bayonet, the Russians virtually destroyed three regiments, leaving the key to the Erzerum positions in Russian hands. It is pointed out that after the Sari Kamash battle the Turks were able to hold this position.

I have the honor to be, Sir,
Your obedient servant,
(Signed)
BRIGADIER GEN. CRUICKSHANK
D. O. C.

Major L. F. Page is a Red Deer man who has distinguished himself in the front as second in command of the 5th Overseas Battalion, has had quite a long experience in the trenches, and will be welcomed to the Red Deer district with a great deal of enthusiasm. It will doubtless be an incentive to many citizens to enlist to be able to join a home battalion and under such experienced and able leadership. It is expected that this battalion will not only be manned from volunteers from the Red Deer district, but collected from men back from the district as well. We advise that the citizens of Central Alberta which will be included in this recruiting district will not be found wanting but will cheerfully and enthusiastically rally to the flag to do their bit toward making up the quota of the increased call required from Alberta.

With the election of P. S. Austen as fourth vice-president, and a representative for each electoral district to the board of directors, the L.F.A. stalwarts, in convention assembled at First Baptist church Calgary, completed, on Thursday afternoon, their full slate of officers for 1916, and in a session characterized throughout by the enormous amount of work put through, went on record as being in favor of consolidated schools in the rural districts, and of the administration of the prohibition act in Alberta by an independent commission.

Interesting addresses on agricultural topics and on matters relating to the welfare of the farmers were delivered during the afternoon by Dr. Magill, chairman of the Dominion grain commission; Dr. Hovey, dean of the agricultural department of the University of Alberta; and Dr. J. C. Miller, director of technical education for the province, and following the delivery of a few remarks by A. W. Coome, representing the Alberta Temperance and Moral Reform league, the convention broke up and passed a resolution urging the provincial government to appoint an independent commission to see to the enforcement of the prohibition act for which the people of Alberta gave such an overwhelming majority last July.

THE AFTERNOON SESSION was opened by the singing of "Tipperary" and the national anthem. Mr. P. S. Austen, Banbury, who is at the present time in Washington, the present vice-president of the association, on the fourth ballot, and ex-

ASSISTANCE RENDERED BY THE DOMINION DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE TO ASSOCIATIONS

In the Purchase of Horses, Cattle, Sheep or Swine for Breeding Purposes.

Owing to the heavy drain upon the live stock of the various warring countries of Europe, they have been forced to go abroad for supplies. The longer the war lasts the greater will be this demand. Moreover, when peace is restored, these countries will require large numbers of the various classes of animals to replenish their stock, herds and flocks. It should be borne in mind, however, that the buyers, who come to this country after the war, will require better animals than have been bought during war time, as they will be used largely for breeding purposes.

With this end in view, the best of the females and particularly the young stock should be kept for breeding purposes. Breeders should not fail to raise all the live stock possible at this time, in order that the country may be able to supply a large number of the animals that are certain to be needed by the warring countries. At present, however, there is an unequal distribution of live stock in the country. In certain sections there is a heavy surplus, with a corresponding scarcity in other parts. During the past year hundreds of young cattle from our Prairie Provinces have gone to the United States as stockers and feeders. These should have been kept at home, particularly the females. Sections of the West are reported as being in need of good draft horses, particularly dark mares while, in sections of Ontario, there is an over supply of this particular class.

In order to remedy these conditions the Minister of Agriculture, through the Live Stock Branch, has decided to grant liberal aid to breeders who wish to secure good breeding stock. The conditions under which aid will be given are as follows:

In the event of a number of farmers in any district of Canada wishing to acquire a better breed of good breeding stock in earload lots from some distant section of the country, the Department will pay the traveling expenses of their duly appointed representative during the time required to effect the purchase and transport the shipment to its destination.

Should it be desired, the Live Stock Commissioner will nominate a suitable person who will be directed to accompany this representative and assist him as far as possible in buying and shipping the animals.

Persons wishing to take advantage of this offer should make full arrangements with the Live Stock Commissioner as to place and time of purchase before sending out their representative.

Editor of the Coronation Review Found Dead on the Prairie

E. W. Harris, editor of the Coronation Review, was found dead on the prairie three miles east of Coronation on Tuesday afternoon after a three days search by the citizens of the town.

Mr. Harris, who had been suffering for some time from a severe attack of grippe, left his boarding place in Coronation morning about 11:30, and was not seen again until his body was found at 9 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon frozen and exposed to the rigors of the recent severe weather. On Saturday night it was noticed that the deceased was suffering mentally as well as physically and a search was made for him. He was found at 9 o'clock on Sunday morning the policeman left his patient asleep and went to the barracks to rest.

At 11:30 Mr. Harris came down stairs in his boarding place, dressed in a sheep lined coat, and wearing a hat and gloves. In answer to a question as to where he was going, he stated that he was going into the yard, as he did not return in a reasonable time, the police and doctor were notified, but no trace of him could be had. During Sunday afternoon the citizens of Coronation or gathered about the boarding place and searched every portion of the town and the cars on the siding, but without avail; on Monday and Tuesday the time was wasted in the vain and regrettable search about stated.

Mr. Harris took over the Review recently arrived from Vancouver where his parents still reside. The deceased was a bachelor about thirty years of age and had followed the printing business for several years prior to coming to Coronation. It is understood that the Review will continue publication in arrangements are underway to this end.

Hockey

The 80th hockeyists sprang a surprise into the camp of the thrusted East Calgary Vics in Thursday's Calgary City League fixture, when they handed them a 6-1 defeat their first of the season, incidentally tying them for league leading honors.

The Red Deer Trio, Hamley, Cliff and Roy Malcolm, not only the latter pair, were again very much in the calcium sharing the honors of the evening with Bryant, the sensational nonpareil goal-keeping who turned aside a multitude of well meant efforts.

Cliff Malcolm as usual had a good eye for the net and baffled Malcolm for four of the soldiers' tallies—Roy Malcolm and Milne accounted for the other two. The team line-up was as follows:—

At Home for the Soldiers

Knox Church Thursday, January 27th, at 8 p.m.

At the annual meeting of the Presbyterian congregation a last week the question, how to make life pleasant for the soldiers of the 80th Battalion who are in Red Deer, was fully considered. The desire to be of service to every member of the Battalion was freely expressed. Lack of assistance in making it impossible to entertain all at one time, and the ladies agreed to make a beginning by inviting the congregation and Presbyterians to a social evening on Thursday night. The evening will be in the nature of a "Tipperary" and the national anthem. Mr. P. S. The Situation as a Whole

(By the Military Correspondent of the "Times," London)

What are the probabilities for the New Year? What are the probable next moves? A prolonged inactivity is not possible, and whatever happens the end is sure.

In order to preserve a distinct and unobscured view of events at the present hour, and to appreciate the situation as a whole, it is necessary for us to separate the temporary from the permanent, and not to be led astray by passing shadows into the belief that the outlook is blacker than it really is, or that Germany is in as strong a position as she pretends to be.

The temporary misfortunes from which we are now suffering are entirely of our own creating. It was not the Germans who compelled us to send a military expedition to the Dardanelles, to plunge into the desert of Mesopotamia in their pursuit of what was in store for us, or to immerse ourselves in Salonica.

We are in course of liquidating these affairs all of which point out the need for allowing our War and General Staffs a greater influence over operations, and for the Cabinet to follow thereafter the principles of strategy suggested by experience. But, however, bitter may be our humiliation and anger, we must not, on this account, consider that the Germans have bested us, for they, poor people, are not in the least to be credited with the authorship of our faults, and they have plenty of troubles in store for themselves.

The central fact of the military situation is that the Austro-German Allies have failed on their three main fronts to overthrow the armies of the Great Powers opposing them, or to affect in any way, except by hardening, the resolution of the Allies to continue the war until their political aims are completely achieved.

Nothing can alter this resolve. Russia is sitting down stolidly to build up during the winter the armies and the munitions which she will throw into the balance in the spring. We are all raising fresh masses of men, and by the spring the results of the war will be felt on every front of Germany.

It is not a lesser but rather constantly a greater strain that awaits our enemy, who, with his resources of men of a military age drawing to an end, has to contemplate the defence of a front 1,200 miles in length and the early renewal of the struggle with increased violence and fury.

What, in these circumstances, will Germany do? All war is guessing and it is incorrect to suppose that the future strategy of Falkenhayn is yet completely unveiled. We know, however, that the Germans have dug themselves in as deeply as the British front, and have withdrawn, at least for a time, a considerable number of divisions from the Eastern theatre. With the new formations of the year 1916 some fresh formations may soon come into view, and winter operations of an important character are to be expected. If, however, suits us best to wait the spring before we renew operations on a grand scale, this is not reason why Germany should await it, it, moreover, the great and ill-concealed anxiety of Germany regarding food and other supplies, finance, and many other matters, may induce her in the future as in the past, to press continually for some great decision.

Many of the divisions withdrawn from Russia have been identified in France, and there is a strong probability at least that an endeavor will be made by Germany to resume in this theatre the initiative which has been lost, and to recover some of the military prestige which was torn from her on the bloody fields of Arras and Champagne. She can have little firm expectation of a great decision, but it has been proved many times that the attacking party in the war of trenches, if it makes good preparation, can burst through a front line at least, possibly more.

The Yser, Ypres, Albert and Champagne, possibly Verdun, are all likely points of attack, but the crucial one on the character of the Flanders winter. We must be, and we believe we are, ready for the Germans at every point, and the horrible days during which we were only able to fire one shell to the German 20 are gone never to return.

The note of exasperation against England which is struck in every German discourse is due to the fact that we have brought all German plans to naught, that we have been severely scratched during the war except financially; that we maintain our impregnable blockade at sea; and that all but one of the German colonies have passed into our hands.

We have deserved our "starving" and take it as a tribute. To hurt and harm England, to attack her by air, means or food, and to bring her into the mood for accepting a German peace have become a positive obsession. For this reason we must regard an attack upon the British lines in France and another attempt to seize the French Channel ports, as probable if other conditions favor the project.

Present appearances point, however, to the greater certainty of another operation against us, namely, an attack on Egypt. As soon as the Belgrade-Sofia railway and the Serbian bridge are completely repaired it is probable that the Germans will dispatch to Constantinople, presumably in January next, say, four Army Corps, probably young troops of new formation, to join up with 350,000 Turks, and thus hope to bring 500,000 men to bear upon our troops in Egypt.

We have in our position, in our means, and in our maritime supremacy all the necessary facilities for defending Egypt with success, but it is one thing to have the means, and another to use them effectively. We may have two months before us for preparation, and much will depend up on the course of events in Salonica and at the Dardanelles; but in any event we must have in Egypt a force answerable to the largest army which can, in the opinion of qualified experts, be brought against us, and we must have good men in command and close co-operation with the Navy.

THREE OBJECTIVES

The failure of the Allies to prepare strategic reserves to meet the always probable case of a blow at Serbia put it out of our power to prevent the arrival of the Germans at Constantinople. When the Germans reach the Golden Horn they will have, leaving the Dardanelles aside, a choice of three objectives—namely, the Caucasus, the East, and Egypt.

The first objective concerns Russia chiefly and will not disturb her overmuch. The second will take long to carry out, but is not on that account to be neglected. The third offers the speediest stroke at England and aims at conquering the sea by the land.

All our spare troops must be concentrated in the Eastern Mediterranean for this campaign. We must see to it that the weakness, irresolution and incompetence which have been such distressing features of our conduct of other secondary operations in this war are replaced by the vigor and decision which are indispensable for the successful defence of Egypt and of our main line of communications with the East.

Amid Loud Cheers Compulsion Bill Passes in House

Tributes Paid to W. H. Long and Bonar Law, Who Piloted Measure

London, Jan. 26.—The military service bill was passed through the committee of the house of commons at 11 o'clock to-night amid loud cheers.

Walter Hume Long, president of the local government board, in a speech closing the discussion said he desired to remove the impression that creating a great monster in the form of a military machine, which would grab at any man coming within its scope. There was no intention that the war office should act with undue severity but on the contrary, it is intended to maintain the present system, almost in its present form, but giving it a statutory position it had hitherto not occupied.

Philip Snowden, the Socialist member for Blackburn, speaking as an opponent of the bill, paid a warm tribute to the generous way the bill had been piloted through the house by Andrew Bonar-Law and Mr. Long.

Mr. Bonar-Law, in reply, made grateful thanks of himself and Mr. Long to all sections for the restraint shown the committee.

Dillon, Nationalist, added that he had never seen a bill which might easily have led to a passionate heated debate conducted through the house with greater skill in a more conciliatory manner. He thought that Premier Asquith had never shown greater skill than in leaving its conduct to Mr. Long and Mr. Bonar-Law.

Denies German Aerial Service Surpasses British

Tennant Says British Airmen Have Given Good Account of Themselves

London, Jan. 26.—The assertion made by a section of the British press that the German aerial service recently has been perfected to such a point as to surpass that of the British, is not endorsed by Harold J. Tennant, parliamentary under-secretary for war, who was questioned on this subject in the house of commons.

Tennant said the military authorities were satisfied that British airmen had given a good account of themselves in recent fighting.

The German method of fighting in the air, Mr. Tennant continued, is of a defensive nature. The new Fokker monoplane, which has been described in the press as superior to those of the allies, are well adapted for defensive work, the under-secretary explained, but are incapable of making long flights. If the Germans adopted the offensive and went behind the British lines, he thought they would meet machines quite equal in efficiency and speed to the Fokker.

Special Meeting of North Red Deer Council

At a special meeting of the Council held on the 11th inst. the Secretary-Treasurer was authorized to take any steps necessary to collect the arrears of taxes owing to the village office.

Councillor Mohring was instructed to oversee the erection of a flag pole suitably equipped, same to cost not more than $5.00, and also to arrange for a sign board for the front of the village office.

The resolution of July 5, 1915, authorizing the P. E. Kent Co. to erect a flag pole for the price of $7.50 was rescinded. Owing to the generosity of certain citizens of the village and the village office it is erected that the village office will shortly have a very neat flag pole and flag erected at a minimum cost. Full particulars will be given regarding donations after the expected becomes the reality. Councillor Mohring is busy on the job.

At a special meeting of the Council held on the 12th inst., the Secretary Treasurer was authorized to take any steps necessary to collect the arrears of taxes owing the village.

Thereafter the Council was instructed to over-see the erection of a flag pole suitably equipped, same to cost not more than $5.00, and also to take any measures for the removal of the front porch of the village office.

The resolution of July 5, 1915, authorizing the P. E. Kent Co. to erect a flag pole for the village at a cost of $7.50 was rescinded. Owing to the generosity of certain citizens of the village and the village it is expected that the village will be able to have a very neat flag pole and flag floated at a minimum cost. Full particulars will be given regarding this matter in the next issue of the paper.

In the reality, Councillor Mohring was busy on the job.

Annual MeetingThe people were present in good numbers to hear and consider the reports of the year's work in so far as this can be given in reports. The reports were carefully prepared and showed much diligent and faithful service through the year. The statistical part of the Session's reports showed 19 additions to church membership, 17 baptisms, 29 marriages, 14 funeral services. The Session again planned on the first of November the observance of the centenary of the righteousness of the cause of Great Britain and her Allies in the great war, called attention to the fact that over 40 young men from the congregation had enlisted for active service, and expressed sympathy in the name of the congregation with all who have been in contact with anxiety and sorrow through their contribution in life to the great struggle. The W.M.S. report was notable for the large amount of clothing prepared to distribute among poorer people on the Mission fields of the Presbytery. The Ladies' Aid had the best year in their history, both in finances and in the development of the social life among all the women of the church who have entered into the spirit of the work. A new kitchen was built at a cost of $225 and paid for and has provided a splendid addition to the equipment. The budget of the Ladies' Aid showed that they had raised $462. The Superintendent of the Sunday School spoke of the loss to the Sunday School
through the departure of Mr. K. K.
Johnston, one of our most faithful
Sunday School teachers, who had enlisted for active service. He called upon the parents to give more attention to the training of their chilren in Sunday School studies and more firmness in the matter of regular attendance. The school had given $46 to missions, nearly all of which was made by the children themselves through the use of their talent money.
The children are now laying out money to help the Belgians.
The help of the choir and of Miss Bowler as organist was placed on record in a sincere spirit by all present. All the young people of the church were urged to take advantage of the opportunities offered in the Young People's Society. The report of the Ladies' Aid showed that the church that he had done his work with thoroughness and skill. Mr.
Wishart complimented the congregation on having a treasure like Mr.
D. A. Bickell, whose work showed the most exact attention to all details for their careful service of both auditors and trustees. Mr. Bickell expressed their sincere thanks. Mr.
Bickell finding it impossible to continue to take charge of the books
this year, the Board were fortunate in securing the services of Mr. R. B.
Law as secretary-treasurer for 1916.
The four vacancies on the Board were filled by the election of Messrs.
Alex. Moyes, A. H. Hopworth, W. H.
Pedley and R. B. Law. Mr. Wishart being reappointed auditor. The financial side of the report showed that the liabilities of the congregation had been reduced by a little over $500 while the congregation had given $100 to missions. This had been made possible by the greatest care and economy in the management and by the special efforts of a comparatively small percentage of the people. The Board called upon all the people young and old, men and women, to show the spirit of sacrifice by so much more generous members, who have gone to fight for us, and by the united efforts of all the people who make more worthy sacrifices for work the new year will also be successful.At the close of the business meeting the ladies invited everybody to enjoy the refreshments in the hall where the duty of the congregation to the soldiers in Red Deer was discussed. Definite announcement will be made on Sunday of the first effort to meet this duty and all the people of the church will be interested and are expected to be ready to do their part. Copies of the printed statement may be had on Sunday after the meeting. Everybody agreed that annual meetings were most interesting and profitable to attend.The general telephone system in the Province of Alberta is owned and operated by the Provincial Government.
According to the last annual report
the government now owns and operates 165 telephone exchanges with 27,514 subscribers' stations, there being 15,192 exchanges and 9,222 rural subscribers.Aside from the government sys-

8,650 subscribers, and a private ex-

Cold weather. Sylvan Lake is frozen up solid.
There was a fine load of hogs shipped out from here last week.
The conductor and trainmen and passengers had to get out and help load them, and they had such a good time, they thought them to be the most beautiful hogs they ever saw.
G. N. Welsh of Red Deer was having a little touch of high life this week, helping to load a car of oats that were raised on his ranch south of town.
We understand that Mr. Cleve Combs is selling off his line lot of cows and young cattle, horses and everything, as he is going to a warm climate.
Mr. Melniss and family of Washington State came out to visit a short time ago and rented a house in the village, calculating to make his home here. He has since bought the C. E.
Cox property, and is waiting for them to move out.
Mr. C. E. Cox left some time ago to see if he couldn't find some more convenient place to suit his taste,
and finally he has located a home
somewhere in the State of Washington. Possibly he has made a good move and we hope that he has, but we must say that we are somewhat fearful of results. His wife and family expect to leave Sylvan Lake in the near future for their new home.Curry, Turner and Mercer

power the amendments to the school
act and the school assessment act, and the existing law in regard to the language question will be left as it

CARD OF THANKS

Mrs. John Allan, Macleod, Alberta, wishes to thank the many friends in Blackfalds and Red Deer for the kindness shown to Miss Lydia Blackburn, during her illness in Blackfalds.

It Pays to Sow Clean Seed

To spend time, labor and money clearing and cultivating land on which to raise mixed grain and weeds is not scientific farming.

If your farming mill is not capable of giving good results, as a good farmer you will discard it and procure one that will.

The BULL DOG FANNING MILL will purify your seed. It will also raise low grade grain from two to four grades.

See the results recently obtained at the Farmers' Elevator.

The wonderful work performed there was the surprise of all who saw it.

I will be pleased to demonstrate for any one who will bring grain to clean or separate.

This mill is built in five sizes, 24 inch to 63 inch.

A call solicited.

Mrs. (Rev.) L. E. Brough arrived in the city last Friday evening from Calgary. Her condition of health is still precarious, and not until she is sufficiently well will there be a formal reception to the members of the church at her home.

Fire invaded the sanctum of the Editor of the Castor Advance on Monday last, but outside of a deluge of water which in zero weather quickly changed to ice, putting the kibosh on some sprightly editorials, no serious damage resulted.

Ken Byers, who is out west at the lumber mill near Leslieville writes it was so cold the other day that his hair is about frozen off and he nearly perished for want of air, as he nearly all frozen solid before he could get enough to breathe. Some could that, Ken.

The following case of local interest was dealt with by Justice Scott, Stuart, Jock and McCarthy in the Appeal Court at Edmonton last week.

James E. Eadie, claimant (appellant) vs. Robert M. Gibson, executor, creditor, defendant (respondent).

This is an appeal from the judgment of His Honor Judge Lees, act. as judge of the District Court of the district of Red Deer. The respondent in this appeal is the execution creditor of Clarence D. Eadie. Under the execution a threshing separator and engine were seized and claimed by James E. Eadie, father of execution debtor. Claimant was made plaintiff in the issue and appeal to this court against the judgment given by His Honor Judge Lees in favor of the execution creditor. The question in dispute is whether or not the claimant is stopped from setting up any title or interest in the said machines. Their Lordships reserved judgment.

Frank Ford, K.C., appeared for the appellant, and A. H. Gibson represented the respondent.
